Questions

- Write down two or more questions per chapter you have while reading. Remember, these questions should be ones that you authentically have or want to think about in the reading. These questions should clarify issues in the text for you and challenge you and your group members to delve into the text.
- Types of Questions you may ask:
    - Clarifying questions, often start with Who, What, When, Where. Answers are readily available in the text.
    - Below the surface questions, start with How or Why. Answers require analysis of the text *(i.e. the answers are in the text but not obvious).
    - Beyond questions do not have a single correct answer. They are open-ended questions about opinions or connection with the text.

2-3 Quotes (with 1 sentence of analysis for each)

- Record quotes from important passages of text (i.e. pivotal moments where you discover something about a character, symbol, theme, particular conflict, or just examples of descriptive language that intrigues you).
- Analyze the quote. How do you feel about it? Why is it important?

Reaction

- Write a reaction to what you just read. What do you think about the characters and conflicts?
- Make connections: did the passage you read remind you of another part in the book or something else you've read?
- Did you feel mad/confused/relieved/happy/offended/shocked by what you read?
